Nova Scotia gears up for a big finish

► Second week of Games in full force today with boxing, figure skating and men's curling ► Nova Scotia leading Centennial Cup standings for most improved team

PHILIP

@METRONWS.CA

Team Nova Scotia has a different mindset in Week 2 of the Canada Winter Games.

There were few medal hopefuls in Week 1, so to come away with one gold and one bronze put us where team officials thought we'd be.

This week, however, much more is expected.

Officials from several sports think multiple medals are a real possibility, so the goal is for plenty of trips to the podium over the event's final seven days.

"No doubt our expectations are higher this week," Team Nova Scotia chef de mission Frank Garner said yesterday.

"We have high expectations, from boxing and judo to figure skating and snowboarding."

The boxing and judo teams are especially confident.

Judo head coach Scott Tanner told Metro before the Games, "We could be up there with five or six medals if we perform the way we should."

Our medallists so far

- Jared Goad, Bible Hill — gold, floor exercise for gymnastics
- Stephen Clouter, Lawrencetown — bronze, parallel bars for gymnastics

Boxing head coach Wayne Gordon took it one step further:

"I would not be shocked if we won seven medals," he said.

Garner is optimistic Team Nova Scotia can hit at least 10 medals, adding that team morale is good right now, thanks to the two medals won at gymnastics late last week.

"It really helped — especially that gold medal," he said. "It just got everyone excited — and saying 'Nova Scotians can do it.'"

Nova Scotia is tied for ninth in the medal standings with the Yukon, one back of Newfoundland and Labrador and two behind New Brunswick.

Our record for medals is 21, set in 1991. Our best medal finish is sixth, set in 1979.

Treating Pain, the Drug-Free and
Non-Surgical way

HOW CAN WE HELP YOU?

CDPC specializes in spinal decompression, a computerized treatment procedure used to treat chronic low back and chronic neck pain. The most common conditions treated are those affecting the discs and joints. Chronic back or neck problems can cause great pain. Daily activities are limited, as simple tasks such as sitting /standing/sleeping become difficult. Spinal decompression works deep into the vertebral joints to repair damage to the spine. As a result, it can get to the root cause of the pain and provide significant relief. Previous MRI, CT, and X-Ray reports provide enough information to determine if you are a good candidate for treatment, but are not necessary.

Also available are Custom Orthotics,
Laser Treatment
& other Services
(May be insurance covered)

What is it?

The treatment separates the spinal joints to take pressure off the discs and nerves. The three phases at CDPC include Spinal Decompression, Oxygen Enhancement (for patient relaxation), and a Nutritional phase. The full procedure is performed simultaneously during a patient's treatment. More information is available at www.cdpc.info.

Does it Work?

The treatment is extremely effective, especially for chronic problems. Everyone responds differently. However, generally patients notice a difference within a few treatments.

What do I do next?

Come in for an initial consultation or assessment. Any previous MRI, CT, x-ray reports would be helpful. If it is determined spinal decompression can help you, you will be given your recommendations for care. You can then decide when and if you would like to start care. There are no obligations.

Before coming to CDPC my husband had to assist me out of bed every morning. I was missing a lot of work because getting in the car and driving was intolerable. My husband suggested I check CDPC out. "Now, after 7 treatments I am getting out of bed and driving is possible again." I am off painkillers for now and hope to stay off for good. The best gift of all is being able to pick my young son and hold him in my arms. Thank you CDPC!

No gold, silver or bronze will be given out at this Canada Games event.

In fact, the provincial representatives in the National Artists Program are making a show of working together — not competing against each other.

"They all compete to get in, just like the athletes do, but once they're here we take them and make them a family," said Chris O'Neill, co-artistic director.

"There's an amazing opportunity to create a community of artists from every part of this country."

Each province and territory sent three artists to Halifax. During the two weeks at the Games, they will be working together and mixing their artistry to perform at the Saturday gala.

"It's such a large country that these moments are creating better citizens. They're creating people who have a sense of the diversity of our geography and our cultures." CHRIS O'NEILL, CO-ARTISTIC DIRECTOR

There are visual artists, dancers, singers, musicians and many more. There's a circus artist from Quebec, a drum dancer from Nunavut, and a photographer from the Northwest Territories, to name a few.

"As far as I know it's the only opportunity in Canada that brings together representative artists from every single province and territory," said O'Neill who joined the artists at a public display at the Seaport Market yesterday.

"I'm just happy to be a part of it and represent our province."

"It is difficult because we have to expand out of our comfort zones. Some things have been really challenging but overall it's been really fun."

Stowaways to appear before prison officials

► Nationality of hidden passengers found aboard Swedish vessel remains unknown ► Hearing will determine whether men stay in custody

Detention reviews will be held today for two stowaways found aboard a container ship in Halifax.

Julie Chamagne, executive director of the Halifax Refugee Clinic, said yesterday the men will be dealt with during separate reviews at the Central Nova Scotia Correctional Facility, where they are being held. Chamagne, who will attend both reviews, still didn't know the nationality of the men but believes they speak Arabic and are from North Africa.

The men were found

Wednesday aboard the Swedish-owned Atlantic Concert after the ACL vessel arrived in Halifax from Liverpool, England.

They have claimed refugee status but Chamagne said today's hearings will decide only if the men should remain in custody until their claims are dealt with by an immigration hearing.

The ship left Liverpool on Feb. 6 and spent 10 days crossing the North Atlantic to Halifax.

While any foreign national can be detained for a variety of reasons, including posing a danger to the Canadian public, Chamagne said she suspects the two men lack identification.

"Usually when people arrive by container ship like that, they've been told by smugglers or by community members overseas to not bring identification," said Chamagne, whose association provides free legal services to people claiming refugee status.

"They tell (the stowaways) they'd be at risk of being returned right away,

RCMP bust pot operation

Police have uncovered a marijuana grow-op at a business in the industrial park in Bedford.

RCMP say they executed a search warrant at the property, which is on Bluewater Road, around 10 p.m. on Saturday and seized 375 mature marijuana plants. Grow-op equipment was also found, police say, as was an electrical bypass, suggesting that power was being stolen.

"The operation was highly sophisticated," said Staff Sgt. Roddie MacDonald, drug co-ordinator for RCMP Nova Scotia, in a release. "The marijuana (grow-op) was located in an industrial complex along with legitimate businesses, and this puts people's lives at risk."

Police say a 39-year-old man from Prospect has been arrested and released on a promise to appear in court at a later date.

CRIME. A hotel clerk was sprayed with an unknown irritant during a robbery on Friday night.

The incident happened at the Comfort Inn on the Bedford Highway.

Police say a man wearing a bandana walked into the hotel lobby shortly after 8 p.m. and demanded cash from the woman who was working at the front desk.

Police say he then sprayed the 25-year-old woman with the irritant before grabbing an undisclosed amount of money and taking off.

Royal invites in the mail

Keep an eye on the mailbox — Britain's Prince William and bride-to-be Kate Middleton have sent out invites to their hotly anticipated royal wedding to around 1,900 guests.

Military personnel and charity workers will mingle with European royalty, diplomats, and the family and friends of the couple at the Westminster Abbey ceremony on April 29, St. James's Palace said yesterday.

Queen Elizabeth II and the Duke of Edinburgh will lead a group of 50 members of the British royal family at the wedding, while around 40 representatives of foreign royal families — likely to include dignitaries from Spain, Sweden and Greece — will also attend.

It isn't yet known whether celebrities including singer Elton John — a friend of William's mother Diana, the Princess of Wales — or Kanye West, a favourite of the prince who performed at a 2007 tribute concert for his mother, are among those who'll receive a prized invite.

Britain's Sunday Express newspaper reported that footballer David Beckham and his wife, Victoria, are on the royal guest list.

One guest already ruled out is Sarah Ferguson, the Duchess of York.

In a statement, William's office said it would not disclose details of individual guests.

There were several rallies in Canada this weekend to show support for protesters in Libya who defied a crackdown by leader Moammar Gadhafi's regime by returning yesterday to the flashpoint city of Benghazi to demand the ruler be overthrown.

More than 100 people rallied in Toronto yesterday. Rallies were also held on Parliament Hill and at the Manitoba legislature on Saturday.

Yesterday, Libyan forces fired machine guns at thousands of mourners marching in a funeral for anti-government protesters in the city of Benghazi, a day after commandos and foreign mercenaries attacked demonstrators with assault rifles and other heavy weapons.

At least 204 people have been killed in the oil-rich country since Wednesday.

A BALANCE BETWEEN HISTORY AND LIFE

Urban Compass

STEPHEN KIMBER

After spending three weeks in Havana researching a book — and avoiding winter — I have reached a few modest conclusions.

First, there are things Haligonians could teach Habaneros. About pooper scooper laws, for example. Havana's sidewalks are a canine minefield. That becomes more understandable when you realize there's a shortage of plastic bags.

Just as it is understandable that — largely because of the 50-year-old U.S. trade embargo — Havana is a living, belching, vintage car museum. Still, Cuban lungs could benefit from North American-style exhaust emissions regulations.

And 21st-century Canadians — for whom recycling is now routine — might be appalled at how casually Habaneros dispose of their disposables. People eat on the run, buying snacks from sidewalk vendors.

When they're done, they're more likely to drop the remains than look for a waste bin. (That said, the nightly scouring of Havana's streets and sidewalks is magical. By dawn, the city is pristine again — yesterday's remnants swept into block-sized green bins and carted off — and ready for another day's droppings.)

But Halifax could learn from Havana, too.

Consider downtown redevelopment.

Though much of Havana still resembles a bombed-out city — there are daily reports of building collapses — the Cuban government is investing a huge chunk of tourism revenues in renewing its historic core.

"But Halifax could learn from Havana, too. Consider downtown redevelopment."

The billion-dollar rebuilding of Havana Vieja — the five-square-kilometre district founded in 1519 — only began in earnest in 1993 after the collapse of the Soviet Union forced the country to turn to tourism.

But unlike most North American urban redevelopment schemes — in which history becomes a tourist artifact and ordinary life is eliminated — the guiding philosophy behind Havana's historic restoration has been that "the inhabitants become the beneficiaries."

Wander through the pedestrians-rule side streets of Old Havana. Kids play soccer, dogs sleep where they please. Glance into open doorways. You're as likely to see a family gathered around the TV as a souvenir shop.

On Obispo, Havana's main tourist artery, there's a primary school. In lovingly restored Plaza Veija, there are trendy restaurants, even a popular micro-brewery. But if you look up, you'll see a family's laundry drying on a balcony.

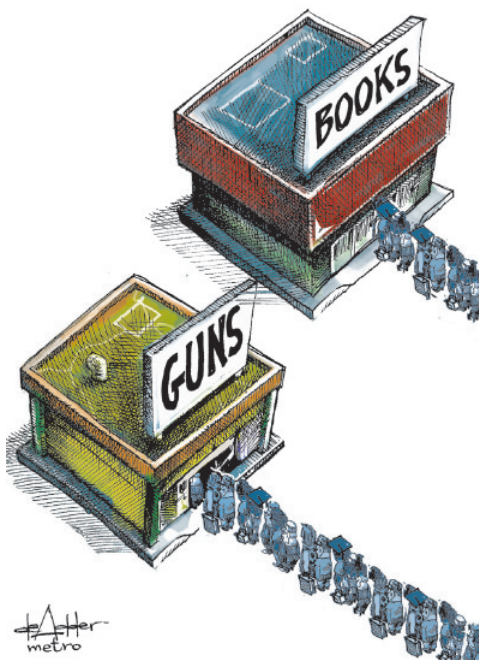

Havana has seemingly found a balance between its history and life.

Halifax could take something from that. Oh yes, and a little sunshine, too.

The April wedding of Prince William and Kate Middleton has spawned a cottage industry of inappropriate souvenirs.

For ladies and gentlemen who wouldn't dare touch anything that hadn't personally been approved by the princely couple, the Royal Collection sells handmade tankards, plates and pillboxes in English fine bone china, complete with William and Middleton's entwined initials in gold and silver.

lar backlash against royal wedding mania.

Most infamous are the royal wedding-themed condoms — an online sensation that featured prominently on the website of celebrity-obsessed OK! Magazine. William and Kate ashtays allow smokers to rub their butts out in the face of the royal couple.

Then there are the William and Kate barf bags, made by Newcastle-based designer Lydia Leith. They feature a picture of the couple underneath the words "Throne Up."

Loan program racks up record losses: Report

- ▶ Revenue does not come close to covering loss claims
- ▶ Taxpayers on hook for up to 85 per cent of losses

A federal loan program for small business paid the banks and other financial institutions a record $113 million in loss claims last year, most of it in hard-hit Ontario, a new report says.

The Canada Small Business Financing Program also guaranteed about $957 million in new loans in 2009-10, which means the annual loss rate hit about 12 per cent.

The report, tabled in Parliament, shows that a troubled program that was supposed to break even continues to suffer from red ink and a dwindling number of customers.

The big trouble spot was Ontario, where only about one-third of the new loans were issued but more than half the losses occurred.

Industry Minister Tony

$113B

The loan-guarantee fund dates from 1999. The fund has so far guaranteed more than $11 billion in small-business loans issued by banks, credit unions and other financial institutions.

Clement defended the program, saying in the report's introduction that it "continues to be a successful mechanism for facilitating asset-backed debt financing to business."

But a KPMG study last year found that it has incurred net losses to Ottawa of more than $300 million and that "the gap between claims and fee revenues will continue to exist and most likely expand."

The number of businesses helped by the program hit a new low in 2009-10 — about 7,500, half the number of a decade ago — but the annual loan value still hit nearly a billion dollars because loan limits were doubled to $500,000 last year.

The loans tend to go to the accommodation and food-services sector.

There were a record 1,968 loss claims on the program last year, or an average of about $58,000 each.

The program suffered bad publicity last fall when a Toronto Star investigation reported that about $4 million in loan money under the program was parted away. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Elusive British street artist Banksy is welcome at Oscars, planners say, but will he show?

► The countdown to the Academy Awards is on! ► With less than a week to go, Metro offers up its picks for who takes home the golden statue in the Top 10 categories

Who is taking home Oscar?

Best Picture

Even with 10 nominees, it's come down to a race between two films: Early favourite The Social Network bloomed early, snatching up a dizzying number of critics' awards and the Golden Globe, but The King's Speech has been on an unstoppable run. The Academy will likely split along age lines for this one. But our money's on The Social Network making a comeback.

Best Director

David Fincher feels like the front-runner for us with The Social Network, but Darren Aronofsky or David O. Russell could just as easily take it for Black Swan or The Fighter, respectively. And don't discount the Coen Brothers — longtime Oscar favourites — and their heavily nominated True Grit.

Best Actor

This is The King's Speech star Colin Firth's year, and no other nominee has the momentum he's built up for his portrayal of the royal stammerer.

Best Actress

We predict Annette Bening is going home empty-handed again. Though she's been nominated for an Oscar four times without winning, she's going to have to wait for No. 5, because this is Natalie Portman's award. The year of training, the physical transformation and the emotional gymnastics add up to the kind of showy performance the Academy eats up. And she's increased her good will since being nominated.

Best Supporting Actor

Another two-horse toss-up, this one comes down to a battle between the latest in a distinguished career (Geoffrey Rush in The King's Speech) versus over-the-top showmanship (Christian Bale in The Fighter). While Rush has been cleaning up elsewhere, expect voters to side with Bale for the same reasons they'll pick Portman for Best Actress.

Best Supporting Actress

Here lies this year's true guessing game. The only nominee close to being considered a front-runner, Melissa Leo (The Fighter), has been handicapped by both a fellow nominee from her film (Amy Adams) and her own misguided, self-financed publicity campaign. Helena Bonham Carter could steal it for The King's Speech.

Best Original Screenplay

Shut out of the Best Director category, expect Christopher Nolan to bring home this as a consolation prize for his brilliant, mind-bending Inception. Of course, the Academy could continue to snub him and give this one to David Seidler for The King's Speech.

Best Adapted Screenplay

Aaron Sorkin will win for The Social Network. It's not even a question at this point. If Sorkin looks surprised or unprepared at the podium, it's an act.

Best Animated Feature

With a nomination for Best Picture on its resumé and Oscar juggernaut Pixar behind it, Toy Story 3 seems like a sure thing, though we'd be just as happy if the surprise hit, How to Train Your Dragon, or art-house favourite The Illusionist pulled an upset.

Best Documentary Feature

We're really hoping Exit Through the Gift Shop wins, not just because it's an amazing film but because we want to see what notoriously camera-shy street artist Banksy does for an acceptance speech. But if the Academy is feeling more traditional, expect Inside Job, a film about the financial crisis, to take the prize.

Most valuable Bieber

► Justin Bieber wins MVP award in losing effort at NBA all-star celebrity game

Justin Bieber finally won a trophy in L.A.

The Canadian teen singing sensation, who was shut out at the Grammys, was chosen most valuable player despite playing for the losing team in the National Basketball Association all-star celebrity game on Friday night.

Bieber had eight points, four assists and two rebounds for the West team, which lost 54-49 to the East at the Los Angeles Convention Center.

Hall of Famer Scottie Pippen led the Magic Johnson-coached East team with 17 points in a game whose defensive highlight might have been Pippen's third-quarter block of Bieber.

The vertically challenged Bieber scampered up and down the court, his famous shaggy 'do bouncing with every step as girls shrieked at the sight.

"He has the softest hair," marvelled former Los Angeles Laker Rick

Teammates

Bieber's celebrity teammates were Zac Levi of Chuck, R&B singer Trey Songz, rapper Romeo Miller, and Rob Kardashian, whose sister Khloe is married to Lamar Odom.

Fox, who patted his West teammate Bieber on the head during the game.

Wearing a black T-shirt under his red-and-white jersey, he spent most of the game hitching up his shorts that fell well below the knee. His pre-game stretching included trying, but failing, to touch his toes.

Bieber showed off some slick moves, dribbling behind his back, and driving and dishing to taller teammate and ESPN analyst Jalen Rose. Bieber fed A.C. Green for the game's first basket, and the singer later hit a three-pointer.

"I'm just running back and forth," Bieber said during an in-game interview. "I'm controlling this whole team. I'm just kidding."

With actor Jamie Foxx and Lakers star Lamar Odom watching, Bieber missed a three-pointer that would have tied it with 30 seconds to go.

Afterward, the 16-year-old from Stratford, Ont., was hurried off the court by burly security guards.

Bieber's week began when he lost out on his two Grammy nominations at Staples Center.

► Pet owners are increasingly turning to online obituaries for support after their pets pass away.

An obit for Rover

► The death of a pet is often as difficult as losing a family member ► Pet obituaries help

Pets are our best friends, faithful companions and family members. And not even death, it seems, can break that bond between animal and human.

Nowhere is that more apparent than in the increasing number of pet obituaries springing up in some newspapers and on social media sites.

On websites such as Doggy Heaven and Immortal Pets, on blogs and on countless Facebook pages, grief-stricken pet owners funnel their sadness into heartfelt tributes.

The obituaries — accompanied by photo montages, poems and notes of condolence from friends — are part therapy and part memorial.

The sites also testify to the coveted place pets hold in our American culture. About 62 per cent of households include pets, according to the American Pet Products Association.

"It's a reflection of the social fabric," says Samantha Gowen, who writes the Orange County Register's Pet Tales blog, which regularly includes obituaries.

She notes that most pet owners are aware that they will likely outlive their animals, which gives the relationship a special poignancy. "There's a sense of empathy when it comes to pets and their lives," says Gowen.

Online obituaries offer pet owners a way find support and channel the pain of losing a pet.

Kristin Tomyn, a 39-year-old from Indianapolis, was distraught after the sudden death of Dakota, her 12-year-old Siberian Husky, and was searching the Internet for consolation when she found Doggy Heaven.

Tomyn posted an obit, which she says helped her

Adding wild mushrooms to this French onion soup adds a twist to make a hearty flavour that is perfect.

It's a great make ahead type of meal that can be heated up after a fun afternoon making a snowman.

Preparation:

1 Place mushrooms in a small bowl and pour water over top. Let stand 15 minutes or until softened. Drain, reserving water and chop mushrooms; set aside.

2 Meanwhile, in pot, melt butter over medium high heat and cook onions for about 10 minutes. Add mushrooms, garlic and thyme and cook for about 15 minutes or until no liquid remains. Add sherry and cook until evaporated. Add stock and bring to a gentle boil.

3 In small bowl, whisk together eggs, cream and parsley. Pour mix into stock, stirring and cook for about 2 minutes.

The Canadian Society for Exercise Physiology's guidelines, unveiled Tuesday, focus on minimizing behaviours that involve little physical movement and the low expenditure of energy.

The group recommends children and youth aged five to 17 limit recreational screen time - including watching TV, playing passive video games and using the computer - to no more than two hours daily.

The guidelines suggest youngsters scale back on time spent indoors and sitting for extended periods. They also recommend limiting use of sedentary transport, like travelling by bus or car. THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Halifax Mooseheads are attempting to tighten the defensive clamps as the playoffs approach.

The Mooseheads allowed just two goals and 43 shots during a weekend split, blanking the Cape Breton Screaming Eagles 1-0 on Friday and falling 2-1 to the Val-d'Or Foreurs on Saturday at the Metro Centre.

For a team that has had its share of shaky moments in its own zone this season, the weekend was a positive sign with just 10 games left until the QMJHL post-season.

"We're playing more of a playoff-style hockey game right now," said Mooseheads captain Travis Randell. "In the playoffs, there's a different level of (competitiveness) for sure.... Everything begins to tighten up and there's a lot more intensity."

Veteran goalie Frederic Piche did his part, starting both games and turning aside 41 shots to improve his goals-against average with the Herd to 3.17 and his save percentage to .887.

In front of him, Randell said the team has committed to getting better.

"We've been working a lot in practice on three-on-threes down low, defensive-zone coverage and back-checking," he said. "It's really helping our game."

A historic day at the Daytona 500

► NASCAR's biggest names stunned by 20-year-old winner ► Bayne wins race one day after birthday

Trevor Bayne finally made a mistake. Fortunately for him, it didn't happen until he missed the turn pulling into Victory Lane at the Daytona 500.

The youngest driver to win the Great American Race gave the historic Wood Brothers team its fifth Daytona 500 victory — its first since 1976 with David Pearson — and Bayne did it in a No. 21 Ford that was retrofitted to resemble Pearson's famed ride.

In his second Sprint Cup start, the 20-year-old Bayne pulled off a thrilling overtime win yesterday at Daytona International Speedway, holding off Carl Edwards after fan favourite Dale Earnhardt Jr. crashed in NASCAR's first attempt at a green-white-checked flag finish.

"Our first 500, are you kidding me?" said Bayne. "Wow. This is unbelievable."

Just one day after leaving his teen years behind, the sport's biggest race was captured by a Tennessean who shaves once a week and considers Rugrats his favourite TV show.

The rookie had been great throughout Speedweeks, even pushing four-time champion Jeff Gordon for most of a qualifying race.

Bayne breaks Gordon's mark as the youngest winner in Daytona 500 history. Gordon was 26 when he won the 500 in 1997.

"I think it's very cool. Trevor's a good kid, and I love the Wood Brothers," Gordon said. "I'm really happy for him. And I think it's great for the sport."

Blowout prevented by P.E.I. goaltender

► Nova Scotia's power play scores three in opening victory ► Next for N.S.: Quebec, who beat Yukon 17-0 yesterday, at Metro Centre tonight, 7:30 p.m.

MATTHEW WUEST
@METRONEWS.CA

Nova Scotia's women's hockey team made sure the province opened Week 2 of the Canada Winter Games on a winning note.

Led by a relentless offensive attack that finished with 41 shots, Nova Scotia downed P.E.I. 4-1 at the Metro Centre as women's hockey — the only game in town yesterday — kicked off the second phase of the Games.

"We were definitely excited starting the week off," said forward Jennifer MacAskill, whose goal at 5:04 of the second period snapped a 1-1 tie and stood as the winner.

"We knew we had to come out strong, and we did. In front of the home crowd it just felt awesome."

With 2,400 in the stands waving flags and handmade signs, Nova Scotia came out flying and might have turned the game into a blowout, had it not been for P.E.I. goalie Hayden Pridham.

Although Nova Scotia had a 2-1 lead, Pridham had stopped 27 of 29 shots — many in spectacular fashion — when she left the game with a charley horse at 6:59 of the second.

"We were looking at each other, going 'Where did this goalie come from? How are we going to get shots past her?'" said Nova Scotia blue-liner Alexis Crossley.

It was Crossley who broke through after Catherine Wood replaced Pridham, scoring on a power-play one-timer at the 13:44 of the second to make it 3-1. The Dartmouth native also assisted on Sarah Robichaud's 4-1 goal in the third period.

The crowd motivated Nova Scotia to keep pushing and helped prevent frustration from setting in, Crossley said.

"We come out, everyone's there with signs and everything, and we all look at each other and say 'Is this real? Is this happening?'" Crossley said. "It's so nice to be at home."

Blayne Turnbull also scored, and Stefannie Moak made 27 saves in goal.

Women's hockey on thin ice with IOC

Emily Fulton dreams of wearing a maple-leaf-embazoned hockey sweater some day and skating alongside other Canadian women on Olympic ice.

And so it wasn't easy for the 18-year-old forward from Stratford, Ont., to hear the president of the International Olympic Committee cast doubt upon her sport during the Vancouver Games last year.

Citing the competitive imbalance between countries playing the sport, Jacques Rogge raised the prospect of nixing women's hockey from the Olympics unless improvements are made.

"I kinda took that hard a little bit," said Fulton, who's representing her home province as it looks for its fifth consecutive gold medal at the Canada Winter Games this week.

"I think women's hockey is headed in a great direction. Certainly you have the top guns, per se, with Canada and the U.S. But the other teams are right behind. They're improving so much."

Melody Davidson, who coached Canada to gold in Vancouver, said there's no question women's hockey has a future at the Olympics. People need to be "willing to put their necks on the line" for the game.

"Jacques Rogge's comments were dead-on at the last Olympics. His timing maybe could have been better, but everybody's got to wake up here and get together," said Davidson. "It can't just be Canada and the U.S. sinking everything into their preparation and the other countries doing it part way or not at all."

Local skaters to be big draw

► St. Margaret's Centre has 300 seats plus a 30-40 capacity standing room

JENNIFER TAPLIN
@METRONEWS.CA

If speedskating packed them into St. Margaret's Centre in Tantallon last week, just wait until hometown figure skaters take to the rink this week.

Eleven-year-old Rebecca MacDonald and Bradley Keeping-Myra, 12, will hit the ice starting this morning at the facility in Tantallon. Matthew Webb, 17, from Upper Tantallon is also competing at his home rink.

All three are entered in the dance pre-novice mix category.

"This is the home rink

"I don't believe it's sold out but I'm expecting some big crowds on certain days. We have some local kids that are going to be competing."

for them so it's going to be exciting. I'm pretty sure they'll pack the facility," said Mike Leroux, general manager.

The Canada Games has been a huge boon to St. Margaret's. About a year ago the rink was enlarged to an Olympic-sized ice surface with new seats and lights installed. It was a $1-million Games legacy renovation.

St. Margaret's played host to speedskating in the first week and it packed the house.

"It's been a great week," Leroux said. "We've had packed stands to capacity and standing-room only every day for the competition days. It's just too bad we didn't have more seats."

It makes for such a good speedskating venue, the Dartmouth club is "more than likely" relocating to Tantallon in the fall, Leroux said.

Young hockey star remains focused

The player touted as hockey's next big prospect feels he successfully skated through the hype at the Canada Winter Games.

Cole Harbour's Nathan MacKinnon, 15, helped Nova Scotia to a seventh-place finish at the competition in Halifax, finishing with eight goals and three assists in seven games.

MacKinnon, who received plenty of media coverage, said he didn't let the attention that came with playing in his hometown affect his overall play.

"I think if anything it motivated me to be better since there (were) high expectations of me," said MacKinnon. "I don't think it hurt my play at all."

MacKinnon, a centre who plays at Shattuck-St. Mary's prep school in Minnesota, made a big impression on scouts with the QMJHL draft just around the corner in June.

"To come out with the Games that Nathan has proves that he is likely the guy that is going to go first overall in the (draft)," said Tom Russell, an independent junior hockey scout.

Debby, I love you dearly, my bestfriend. Times are going to be tough, but I will be by your side for every step of it. Be strong, and have faith.

Today's horoscope

♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Use your powers of persuasion to get others to help you with something important. Because you are so impatient you may be inclined to go it alone but you won't get far on your own.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 You are in exactly the right frame of mind to take a few risks, and chances are they will pay off in a big way.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 Take the initiative and make things happen. If you sit there waiting for others to make the first move you won't get anywhere worth going today, so stop thinking so much and just act.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Everyone seems to approve of what you are planning, but don't take that as a green light just yet because there are a still a few loose ends that need to be tidied up before the time is right.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 You are advised not to take anything, yourself included, too seriously today. Cultivate a frame of mind where life becomes a game and winning and losing are not in themselves that important.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Take responsibility for your thoughts, your words and your actions and don't try to blame others if things don't work out exactly as you had planned. Maybe that's not such a bad thing.

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca ♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 How much do you trust someone you work with? Enough to trust them with a secret you don't want the whole world to know?

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Push your luck a bit today. Take the kind of chances you usually prefer to avoid.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 A good deed done with no thought of reward for yourself will have the kind of positive consequences that even a far-sighted Sag cannot have anticipated.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 This is one of the best times of the year for socializing and mixing with people from all walks of life, so don't sit there by yourself, get out into the world and make things happen.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Mercury, Mars and Neptune join forces in your birth sign today, making this the perfect time to give wings to your imagination. The world needs people who are not afraid to act on their dreams. In short, the world needs you.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 Stand back from yourself today and try to understand why you think and act in certain ways. Once you realize that so much of what you do is done out of habit it will be easier to change your ways.
